The Community Engagement Manager job

Managing our Community Engagement team who are spread across Wales you'll have strong people management experience and leadership skills to bring to this role. You'll be training and supporting them in their work and developing the shape of our community engagement programme.

With practical experience in this job field, you'll be a particular match when it comes to making a difference through community engagement and stakeholder development. You'll be able to network across the Third and private sectors, manage budgets and understand the barriers faced by those experiencing cancer and make the moves to remove them.

You'll play a key part in ensuring our planning for our engagement is inclusive and reaches diverse groups across Welsh communities. We want to make sure people know how we can help and support them when it comes to cancer. So, it goes without saying this is an important manager job that identifies how we can make support accessible, so that everyone has equal access to the best cancer support options for them.

So, if this is your next step within Tenovus Cancer Care we can't wait to hear from you!
